IN SEARCH OF A FATHER.

[Original.]

Years ago a man and his wife and boy baby settled in a village in New England and set up housekeeping in a small way. Why they chose to make the place their home no one knew. Neither worked for a living, but they did not appear to be in want of funds. Their station seemed to be that of upper servants.

The child, Arthur, as he grew from babyhood to boyhood, was of a widely different type from his parents. While they were homely, he was handsome; while they were dark, he was fair; while they were of a course grain, there was that about him akin to the manner born.

Finally the source from which they drew their income seemed to be failing them. The man—Trainor was his name—made frequent trips somewhere, no one knew where, and on his return the family's finances seemed to have improved, but only temporarily. At last the woman died. After her death the father disappeared, leaving his son, now about thirteen years old, to shift for himself. He had not been required to work and, now that he was thrown on his own resources, knew not what to do. He desired to find his father with a view to having his wants provided for, as before. He wandered about aimlessly, doing odd jobs and eking out a miserable existence.

Two years had passed in this way when one day while he was at work in a field he saw his father drive by in a buggy. The boy ran to the fence and called, but did not succeed in making himself heard. Running after the buggy, he followed it for miles, now losing it, now regaining sight of it, till at last he saw it turn into a handsome country place.

Arthur was by this time exhausted, so he sat down on a stone to catch his breath, keeping his eye on the place his father had entered. It was a sightly place, the house being large and the grounds spacious. He wondered who lived there and why his father went there. How beautiful life must be to one who could call such a place home! As soon as he had regained his wind he got up and ran on. The place was more than a mile away, and he was some time in reaching it. When he did he entered a large gateway with a massive stone pillar on either side and followed a winding driveway to the house. The horse his father had driven was hitched to a post before the front porch.

Suddenly the front door opened, and an old gentleman ushered Trainor out, saying:

"Not a cent! Find the child and I'll square the account with a thousand dollars, but till then never let me see your face again."

Suddenly Trainor caught sight of the boy.

"Why, Arthur!" he exclaimed. Then, turning to the old man, he said: "There he is. Now you may atone for your villainy."

The old man stood staring at the handsome boy, all ragged as he was, and gasped:

"Is that my grandson?"

"He is. He's your daughter's son and your grandson." Then to Arthur: "My boy, I'm not your father. This old gentleman will tell you who you are."

The old man took the boy in his arms, then, running into the house, called:

"Alice, your boy is here!"

In a moment a lady of middle age ran down a winding staircase, and, seeing the astonished Arthur, she took him in her arms and would not release him.

Some eighteen years before Alice Archer had run away from home to marry a man her father disliked. Her father had followed her and succeeded in getting her back to his home, where he kept her a quasi prisoner. A child was born, and Mr. Archer made up his mind to get rid of it. Giving the baby to Trainor and his wife, who had been his servants, he agreed to furnish them with money as long as they needed it. But Trainor became so importunate that Mr. Archer was obliged to shut off a part of the supply and finally all.

The man Alice Archer had married died, and the mother at last prevailed upon her father to restore her child. But by this time Trainor had deserted the boy and lost track of him. After this Mr. Archer refused to pay Trainor any more money till he produced the boy. But on the day Arthur came home his grandfather paid Trainor a lump sum on condition that he would use it to leave the country never to return.

Arthur Archer, or, rather, Reginald, which was the name given to him before he was sent away, was first put into a bath, then clothed in apparel befitting his station. Then commenced the process of making up for the years he had lost in the matter of education. He is now a man. Often he saunters up the road to the spot where he sat down to catch his breath when following his supposed father, and, gazing at the place he then looked upon so covetously, he recalls the picture of his boyhood days and contrasts them with the present. His grandfather is dead, and he is master of all the old gentleman possessed. In Mr. Archer's old age he came to see his sin in turning away his own flesh and blood and could not do enough by way of atonement. But he never entirely forgave his daughter for running away and marrying against his will, and after his death it was found that he had left all his property to his grandson. This, however, made no difference, for the grandson lives only for his mother and to erase the blight caused by her father. SILVIA LEWIS BALDWIN.

A SUPERINTENDENT'S STORY.

[Original.]

I'm a self made man. I started as fireman on a locomotive, passed ten years as engineer and rose to be general superintendent of the road.

Now, there is a vast difference between a fireman or engineer and a general superintendent. But I didn't get the big head. I never considered myself or any of my family any better for my sitting in a revolving chair tapping a bell for some one to wait on me than when I had my hand on the throttle, and when Tom Millikin, a locomotive engineer, came courting my daughter Susie I didn't turn him down because he drove an engine. But what I wanted for Susie was a man of nerve, strength and character.

"Tom," I said, "you may have Susie on one condition. We want a man to take a new passenger limited through in the night. The distance is 300 miles, and it must be done in five hours. The average must be sixty miles an hour, which means as low as fifty and as high as seventy. Do the job, and you shall have Susie."

Tom thought a long while, then said:

"I have always supposed, Mr. McMullen, that you'd never ask a man to do what you would not do yourself."

"I wouldn't."

"Well, suppose we put it this way: You take the train through first. If you succeed, I take it through and get Susie. If you don't succeed, I get Susie without making the attempt myself."

The fellow knew how to handle me. I was very proud of my knowledge of railroad technique and had carried trains often since my promotion. I at once acceded to his terms.

I shall never forget the experience of that run. Twenty minutes before train time I appeared in overalls at the engine, which was standing ready on the track, to make my own inspection of her and do my own oiling. When we pulled out I felt like a bird let out of a cage. I was still, though fifteen years older than when I left the cab, in full vigor of nerve and muscle. I had figured carefully just what time I must make on different parts of the road and was in every way prepared for the trial. I had never driven an engine for any length of time over fifty miles an hour, and up to that point there is no great strain on an engineer. I did not realize that an average man can't stand many spurts at sixty-five miles an hour and in some places I must do seventy.

I got on pretty well for the first three hours, though I had made a number of my fast paces, but after that I began to suffer. Looking straight ahead continuously, seeing at the same time things out of the corners of my eyes whizzing by me, made me feel as if something was pulling my sight nerve out through the sockets. Some of my fastest spurts came in about this time, and every few minutes I was frightened half out of my senses. The first thing to rattle me was seeing something black on the track dead ahead of me. I thought it was the rear end of a train with no lights out. If it had been there would have been no time to slow up, but it was gone before I could have done so anyway, and then I realized that it was the shadow of a bird flying across the headlight. This had the effect on my nerves of an escape from a sudden plunge into death.

I had always been quick to adopt improvements on the road and had put on electric headlights. This made all the shadows look like big black things, solid as masonry. The shadow of a telegraph pole cast on the track as it sometimes would be at a curve ahead looked for all the world like the trunk of a tree. The worst scare I had was from something that wouldn't get out of the way. It was a big round black bowler that appeared a few hundred feet ahead. This was the only scare I put on the brakes for. As I slowed down I noticed that I got no nearer to it. Finally I stopped short, went ahead to the pilot, and, turning, there on the glass before the headlight was a little moth.

An hour before I was due to arrive I had made up my mind that, though I could make an engine to do the trip on schedule time, I couldn't make a man to run her. But I had a lot of pride and continued the struggle, though my failing nerves rendered failure almost a certainty. When I had the last forty miles to go and only thirty minutes to do it in I gave up and turned the throttle over to my fireman, with directions to take his time. As I left the engineer's post I staggered to the seat on the other side of the cab, and it was all I could do to hold on when I got on to it.

I felt as if a dozen men with hammers had been pounding on every nerve in my body. When we reached the station I called a carriage and went to a hotel, and if I hadn't been too proud, or, rather, if I hadn't feared it would get out, I'd have called a trained nurse to take care of me.

The next day I went back in the president's private car and the morning after appeared in my office and sent for Tom Millikin. He came in, looking curious. I said to him:

"Tom, you needn't perform your part of the contract. It would be no use, for I've made up my mind not to put the train on. You've won."

"I'd like the privilege of doing the trick once," he said. "If you don't mind."

I gave him permission, and he took the train through on time

THE LAND OF OPHIR.

Where Was It—In Mashonaland, South Arabia or India?

One of the most interesting and important questions concerning Biblical sites perpetually invites research and persistently evades solution. "Where is the land of Ophir?" Dr. Karl Peters at a public meeting in Berlin declared emphatically that this famous Biblical region is located between the Zambezi and Limpopo rivers. He told his German audience how he has discovered many shafts of ancient gold mines, 500 temples, fortifications and other ruins of Phoenician origin. Dr. Peters affirms that coins unearthed in Mashonaland belong undoubtedly to the time of King Solomon. His opinion is that no other part of Africa could have exported the ivory, silver and precious stones which are recorded in the Bible as coming from Ophir.

Against this theory, founded as it undoubtedly is on very plausible evidence, Bible students are still likely to maintain, on the testimony of Genesis x, 29, that Ophir was a section of South Arabia. Here down to the time of Ezekiel the Phoenicians still landed to procure gold and gems with which those famous sailors and merchants of the ancient world traded in many countries distant from their Syrian shores.

Many erudite writers have attempted to identify Sofala, on the east coast of Africa, with Ophir, while yet others have located it in India. One of the most learned essays written on the subject is from the pen of Professor Hommel, who argued that the ancient land of gold was Arabia Felix.—Homiletic Review.

A Man to Be Envied.

"Do you know," remarked a visitor to a Broadway hostelry, "I'm always inclined to envy the clerk in a hotel like this. He is always well groomed and smiling, has a wider acquaintance among the wealthy or well to do than I can ever hope to have and is always so aggressively at peace with the world and himself; also he wears, more often than not, a diamond scarfpin or ring which is certainly beyond me. It's a pretty comfortable berth."

Several hours later the hotel clerk reached for his coat and hat. As he left the office he turned to a comrade:

"Say, Ned, can you let me have $10 till the first? Rent due at home tomorrow, and I'm shy. Doctor's bills hit me pretty hard this month, and I don't want to lie awake tonight if I can help it."—New York Globe.

Her Poor Memory.

A woman who belonged to an ancient but penniless family married a rich plebeian, but she never forgot the misalliance nor allowed any one else to do so. One day, attended by a servant, she went into a store and gave an order.

"And where shall I send it, madam?" said the shopkeeper.

"Jean," said the woman, turning to her servant, "tell the man your master's name. I never can remember it."

The Average Man.

"Pa, what's an average man?"

"One who has a sneaking suspicion that he has qualities which make him superior to anybody else."—Chicago Tribune.

Would Get Copyright Fee.

"What can I do for you, sir?"

"Well, you see, parson, there's a girl with me that I'd like to get copyrighted in my own name."—New York Press.

To Catch the Train.

A physician says early rising is an error. More frequently it is a necessity.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Receiving a new truth is adding a new sense.—Liebig.

Verdict for Dr. Pierce
AGAINST THE Ladies' Home Journal.

Sending truth after a lie. It is an old maxim that "a lie will travel seven leagues while truth is getting its boots on," and no doubt hundreds of thousands of good people read the unwarranted and malicious attack upon Dr. R. V. Pierce and his "Favorite Prescription" published in the May (1904) number of the Ladies' Home Journal, with its great black display headings, who never saw the humble, groveling retraction, with its inconspicuous heading, published two months later. It was boldly charged in the slanderous and libelous article that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of woman's weaknesses and ailments, contained alcohol and other harmful ingredients. Dr. Pierce promptly brought suit against the publishers of the Ladies' Home Journal, for $300,000.00 damages.

Dr. Pierce alleged that Mr. Bok, the editor, maliciously published the article containing such false and defamatory matter with the intent of injuring his business; furthermore, that no alcohol, or other injurious, or habit-forming, drugs are, or ever were, contained in his "Favorite Prescription"; that said medicine is made from native medicinal roots and contains no harmful ingredients whatever; and that Mr. Bok's malicious statements were wholly and absolutely false.

In the retraction printed by said Journal they were forced to acknowledge that they had obtained analyses of "Favorite Prescription," from eminent chemists, all of whom certified that it did not contain alcohol or any of the alleged harmful drugs.

These facts were also proven in the trial of the action in the Supreme Court. But the business of Dr. Pierce was greatly injured by the publication of the libelous article with its great display headings, while hundreds of thousands who read the wickedly defamatory article never saw the humble groveling retraction, set in small type and made as inconspicuous as possible. The matter was, however brought before a jury in the Supreme Court of New York State which promptly rendered a verdict in the Doctor's favor. Thus his traducers came to grief and their base slanders were refuted.

Let Us Do Our Duty.

THE war for cleanliness is on in dead earnest all over the State and it is a fact worth mentioning that women are achieving great note for their success in carrying on the campaign. Here in Sonoma the neccessity for better conditions and more modern sewerage was taken up some three or four years ago by several of our prominent ladies, but we are ashamed to say that our citizens turned their efforts into jest, instead of giving them the strong co-operation which the work demanded, and as a result we are but little better off today than we were then.

With the approach of summer it behooves us to get busy and clean up, for although the plague may not be so awful a reality as the campaign against filth would seem to indicate still where there is so much smoke there must be fire and from that source (San Francisco) we get many transients during the summer months. The varioloid was brought to the valley last year in this way and if something more deadly should appear in our midst let us feel that we are able to combat it or at least have done our best to protect our loved ones. Fire itself could not be more terrible than the sweep of some pestilent disease through our schools.

We are glad to state that the present Board of Health is more active than some of its predecessors and every citizen should give the gentlemen of this organization assurance that they are backed up by the entire community in every effort toward renderiug the health of Sonoma more secure. We would suggest that our neighbers, El Verano and Glen Ellen, get into line and work for the title "spotless town."

Our city dads may not give bonuses for rats, but let us carry on the health campaign regardless of reward, for we have our health and the reputation of the valley as a health resort to defend.

Sonoma Valley water and air will cure anybody, but these priceless gifts from God should be prized and protected by those to whom they have been given. Our valley is too beauteous and ideal for man to neglect or desecrate. Let us lend every effort to make it what it was intended—the happy, healthy, healing home of God's children. If "happiness is the natural flower of duty" let us do our duty that we may cull many blossoms through all the days that we are allotted here in the chosen spot of the West.

The Mismated Ones.

MEN and women who excuse their neglect of duty to society and lack of self-respect by prating of their search for affinities have made themselves and that much distorted word the laughing stock of the world. There is such a thing as affinity and the fact that many couples already married and about to be married are sadly mismated or ill-matched is a matter of common observation. Sooner or later they will not get along, or if they do it will be under protest. That one is really the affinity of the other may not occur to the mind of either, for affinity is thought of as an intangible attraction, an imaginary requirement. There are more people married and who will stay married who lack in real affinity than will ever be aware of it. Those who make this their slogan for divorce probably never had to contend with the reality. Incompatibility would better describe their troubles.

Those who lack in affinity yet jog along are many. Recall the little woman who, although living in the city, puts out a big washing, bakes her own bread, thinks constantly of saving, mothers a large family and is up at sunrise. She is married to a man, perhaps, who is city bred, careless of his money and entirely incapable of appreciating any thrift or sacriffce on the part of his wife. What an ideal farmer's wife she would make. Recall the farmer's wife who rebells at early rising, who requires congenial companionship, longs for social opportunity, dreads the week's washing and cannot possibly be on a sympathetic plane with her husband. There are many such as these and many men just as unfortunate in their connubial partnerships. There is the man who loves home life and buys a beautiful place for the wife who prefers the hotel or apartment house. If practical tastes, not mere sentiment, governed the selection of life partners, sentiment would not burn so low and we would come nearer determining the real meaning of affinity.

BERNHRDT, always known as the "divine Sarah," will have to prepare to be called the "infernal Sarah" now that she is to play the Devil in Faust.

SUPERIOR COURT CALENDAR DAY.

The calendar day proceedings in the Superior Court on Monday were of an interesting nature.

In Judge Seawell's department the proceedings were as follows:

The case of the State against Andy Corrillo, charged with assault with a deadly weapon, was dismissed upon motion of the district attorney on the ground of the insufficiency of the evidence to convict.

Default was entered in the divorce suit of Ella O'Neill vs. Alfred O'Neill, and the trial was set for March 16th. A similar order was made in the suit of Clara Tibbetts vs. Charles Tibbetts.

Default was entered in the suit of Albert Moll vs. Mrs. E. Moll and it was continued to March 16th to be set for trial.

The action of Harwood vs. Haehl was dismissed, as settled without cost to either party.

The life estate of Martha Winkler was declared to have been terminated.

The demurrer to the amended complaint was overruled in the suit of John D. Hinshaw vs. John J. White.

In the case of the State vs. H. B. Newton, on appeal from the Recorder's Court of Petaluma, growing out of his arrest and fine for soliciting orders for merchandise, the court heard argument and granted a new trial. Later the case was dismissed.

The suits of Lichau vs. Lichau, O'Brien vs. Batchelor, to March 16; Tresc vs. Peterson, to March 23rd.

In Judge Denny's department Emile Bachman was named administratrix on the estate of Herman Bachman in a bond of $3,310. The same administratrix was named on the bond of Mary Bachman in a bond of $316.

The final account of the estate of Roy McReynolds, a minor, was settled and allowed.

The distribution of the estate of Joseph Dont was ordered and the final account was settled and allowed.

The demurrer in the matter of the contest of the will of Wm. H. Rogers was sustained and ten days allowed to amend the complaint.

A sale of personal property of the estate of Rachael Jameson was confirmed.

The matter of revoking the probate of the will of Geo. O'Farrell was continued to March 16th.

The final account was settled and distribution ordered of the estate of John Dixon.

The matter of the estate of Owen Burns was continued to March 23d.

The motion for a change of venue in the suit of H. B. Muzzy vs. D. McEwen was set for hearing for March 19th.

These matters were continued: O'Brien vs. Batchelor, Dolcini vs. Dolcini, Overton vs. Overton, Hamilton vs Wilson, to March 16th.

Free Flower and Vegetable Seeds.

Congressman Duncan E. McKinlay has had forwarded to this office from the Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C., a quantity of flower and vegetable seed for free distribution. Parties desiring a package of these seeds will please call at this office.

YOU MAY NOT NEED IT NOW.

Put it in Some Safe Place as it May Come In Handy Some Day.

Here is a simple home-made mixture as given by an eminent authority on kidney diseases, who makes the statement in a New York daily newspaper that it will relieve any case of kidney trouble if taken before the stage of Bright's disease. He states that such symptoms as lame back, pain in the side, frequent desire to urinate, especially at night; painful and discolored urination, are readily overcome. Here is the recipe; try it:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here in town is authority that these ingredients are all harmless and easily mixed at home by shaking well in a bottle. This mixture has a peculiar healing and soothing effect upon the entire tkidney and urinary structure, and often overcomes the worst forms of rheumatism in just a little while. This mixture is said to remove all blood disorders and cure the rheumatism by forcing the kidneys to filter and strain from the blood and system all uric acid and foul, decomposed waste matter, which cause these afflictions. Try it if you aren't well. Save the prescription.

Exposure

To cold draughts of air, to keen and cutting winds, sudden changes of the temperature, scanty clothing, undue exposure of the throat and neck after public speaking and singing bring on coughs and colds.

A valuable horse belonging to Joe Ryan fell down a twenty-foot well in the rear of the Keil residence yesterday morning. The horse was seen to go backward into the well by Mrs. O'Rourke who gave the alarm. A block and tackle were secured by a rescuing force and the animal was soon hoisted out of his predicament, none the worse for his fall. Had the animal's plight not been discovered by Mrs. O'Rourke he would have perished.

An eloping couple from Santa Rosa blew into town Wednesday with an irate husband hot on their trail. The latter endeavored to secure a warrant in Justice Small's court for the arrest of the elopers, but was informed that they were immune from arrest and punishment. The erring wife was then beseeched by her discosolate hubby to return to him. Nothing doing. His pleadings so far have proved in vain. The parties are still here. No reconciliation, no arrests, no gore, no nothing. Just simply one man's wife running off with another man without any trimmings for a story.

CITY TRUSTEES IN SPECIAL SESSION.

Award Two Contracts and Authorize Plaza Committee to Attend to Certain Matters.

At a special meeting of the City Trustees, held Monday evening, bids for for grading the low places in the plaza surrounding the New City Hall and for the purchase of the old stone jail were received as follows:

For hauling 500 yards of earth for filling in around the New City Hall—A. Pinelli, 75c per yard; J. E. Poppe, 75c; E. H. Johannsen, 70c; A. Volquardsen, 72½c; H. Castagnasso, 50c.

A. Weigand bid a lump sum of $2,300 for hauling the 500 yards of soil.

The contract was awarded to H. Castagnasso for $500.

Only one bid for the stone jail was received. This was from city hall contractor Jas. B. Newman, whose bid of $51 was accepted by the Trustees.

The plaza committee was instructed to procure suitable electric light fixtures and extra plumbing for the New City Hall; also, to have a cesspool dug on the plaza.

The members then adjourned to the first Wednesday in April.

The Maxwell Car.

The Maxwell touring cars and runabouts are attracting considerable attention of late on account of their perfect parts and simplicity. The cost, too, makes it possible for a person of moderate means to invest in one of these machines. Among well-known Petalumans who now own a Maxwell are F. L. Blackburn, Coroner and Public Administrator, who is the owner of a large runabout; A. Lachman of the well-known wine firm of Lachman & Jacobi, 4-cylinder touring car, and C Young, the druggist, has a runabout.

J. H. Madison is the agent for Sonoma and Petaluma for The Maxwell. Read his adv in another column and write to him at the latter place for a catalogue.

Latest Building Improvement.

The latest building improvement in this place is the two-story all steel structure which is being built on Broadway by J. J. Dunbar, the foundation for which is being laid by contractor A. E Warriner. The building will have a frontage of 26 feet and a depth of 70 feet and will be occupied by Mr. Dunbar about May 1st as a hardware and plumbing establishment.

JUVENILE COURT FOR SONOMA COUNTY.

Probation Committee Selected by the Superior Court Judges.

In compliance with a statute passed by the last Legislature providing for a Juvenile Court to look after youthful offenders Judges Seawell and Denny, sitting en banc, have appointed the following probation committee of the Superior Court of this county:

Mrs. Henry G. Hahman, Santa Rosa.
Mrs. John D. Wagnon—Sonoma.
Mrs. John Fritsch, Petaluma.
Mrs. Charles F. Rohrer, Santa Rosa.
John R. Plover, Santa Rosa.
A. C. McMeans, Santa Rosa.
C. C. Belden, Santa Rosa.

After the committee has taken the oath of office its members will meet and organize. Then a probation officer will be chosen. The plan has already been tried in several of the counties with good results.

The appointment of a probation committee and the establishment of a juvenile court in this county has been advocated for some time by the club women of Santa Rosa, Sonoma and Petaluma and each of the three cities are represented on the committee by a prominent club woman.

The object of the juvenile court is to reform wayward boys and girls by putting them on probation.

There will be a meeting of the members of the probation committee next Monday for the purpose of taking the oath of office, organizing and selecting a probation officer. Both Judges Seawell and Denny will participate in the organization.

Spreckles' Bungalow Will Cost $20,000.

Rudolph Spreckels has let the contract for building a magnificent bungalow at Sobre Vista, his country home in this valley. J. O. Kuykendall of Santa Rosa was the successful bidder and signed up the contract last Monday.

The bungalow, which will be located on the site of the big mansion destroyed by fire some years ago, will be built on a large scale. The porches around the building will be twenty-four feet wide, the diminsions of the living room 26x40 feet and the dining room 26x30 feet.

Since he purchased the Sobre Vista property from Col. G. F. Hooper eight or ten years ago Mr. Spreckles has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in improving the place and when this latest improvement will have been completed Sobre Vista will be one of the most magnificent country homes in all of Northern California.

Frank M. Burris, President of the Sonoma Valley Bank, was here from Santa Rosa yesterday occupying cashier Jesse Burris' place for the day during his temporary absence from town.

Wise Talks by the Office Boy Repeated.

My Sunday school teacher was telling me that story about Jonah swallowing the whale, and I've been thinking it over. Perhaps it is straight and perhaps it isn't, but I bet Jonah had to give his wife some kind of an excuse for being away from home three days and nights, all right, all right. We don't pass out a lot of propositions to our customers they can't swallow. There are no concerns in this country, east or west, who sell better hats for $2 than we do, and most of them sell our $2 grade for $2.50. Strikes me a fellow is losing a lot of good time hunting for the store that sells as good. We are trying to head the list of hat buyers in this valley and are crowding all the value possible into our hats, as we know it's quality and style that brings folks back. Just last Saturday a fellow came into our store and said to the boss: "I bought this hat of you three years ago for $2 00 and I want another." Our hats are better now than they ever were.

Railroad Retrenchment.

The stringency of the money market the past few months is supposed to be the cause of this latest curtailment of its expense account.

C. P. SPRAGUE IS DEAD AT AGE OF 86

Was a Pioneer of California and Resided For Forty Years in Yolo County.

C. P. Sprague, a pioneer Californian, died at his home here Monday at the ripe old age of 86 years.

The deceased was a retired attorney and previous to locating here five years ago practiced law for forty years in Woodland, Yolo county, and other places. For many years he stood at the head of his profession and although not well off in this world's goods when he passed away he had made several fortunes during his life time.

He leaves a wife, daughter and two sons. Dr. Fred. F. Sprague of Jackson, Amador county, and attorney Frank Sprague of this place are the sons of the deceased, who was a native of New York.

The remains were taken to Oakland Tuesday and cremated.

J. E. Poppe Is Re-elected Fire Chief

At a meeting of the Sonoma volunteer firemen held last Wednesday evening J. E. Poppe was re-elected chief of the company. At the February business meeting of the firemen there was a tie vote for chief between J. E. Poppe and G. S. Harris and before the meeting adjourned it was decided to take another ballot at the March meeting to decide the tie.

Thirty-four votes were cast Wednesday evening with the following result: Poppe, 23; Harris, 11.

Mr. Poppe has been chief of the Sonoma Volunteer Fire department ever since its organization in 1887, with the exception of two years when absent from town when the office was filled by the late Chas. Englebert some eighteen yeare ago.

The other officers who have held continuous terms for many years are Geo. Engler, foreman of the hook and ladder truck; George Breitenbach, foreman of the hose cart; Peter G. Keil, foreman of engine and Jas. H. Albertson, Secretary.

The first President of the company was the late Henry Raschen, who was succeeded by J. M. Cheney, who held the office for many years.

THE MONEY QUESTION.

An Inquisitive Youngster and an Ingenious Father.

"Papa," began Gunston junior, "when the government of the United States began to coin gold and silver money it was necessary to buy the gold and silver, wasn't it?"

"Yes, my son," replied Gunston senior rather cautiously.

"Of course, papa," resumed the youngster, "you'll be able to tell me where the government got the money to buy the gold and silver."

"Why—er—of course," stammered Gunston senior as he put down the paper and gazed thoughtfully at the boy. "Now, let me understand you. The government wanted to coin money, and in order to do so it was necessary to purchase gold and silver. You want to know where the government got the money to buy the gold and silver?"

"That's right," chuckled Gunston junior gleefully, and a great joy filled his being as he thought of his all important sire struggling with the simple question.

"Why, sonny, the government simply issued dollar bills and bought gold and silver with them. Anything else?"

"Yes," said Gunston junior. "Where did the government get money to buy paper for the dollar bills?"—Harper's Weekly.

THE HORSE WON.

Beat the First Locomotive on the B. and O. Road.

The first locomotive on the Baltimore and Ohio had sails attached. So did the cars. These sails were hoisted when the wind was in the right direction so as to help the locomotive.

The rivalry between the railroads using locomotives and those using horses was very bitter. In August, 1830, an actual trial of speed was held between a horse and one of the pioneer locomotives, which did not result in favor of the locomotive. The race was on the Baltimore and Ohio, the locomotive being one built by Peter Cooper, who also acted as engineer.

The horse, a gallant gray, was in the habit of pulling a car on a track parallel to that used by the locomotive. At first the gray had the better of the race, but when he was a quarter of a mile ahead Mr. Cooper succeeded in getting up enough steam to pass the horse amid terrific applause.

At that moment a band slipped from a pulley, and, "though Mr. Cooper lacerated his hands trying to replace it, the engine stopped and the horse passed it and came in the winner."—Van Norden Magazine.

They Don't Like Funerals.

"If you want to know just how sensitive some Washington folks are, listen to the reasons some of our tenants give for canceling their leases," said a renting agent. "Here are the complaints from five families who want to move because they live on 'funeral streets.' A lot of people, it seems, are sensitive about that. There are certain streets in town—those near churches where many funerals are held and those leading to the various cemeteries—which are usually traveled by funeral parties. Houses in those streets are becoming a poor investment. There is more moving from those houses than from any others we have anything to do with, and generally the movers give as the reason for their dissatisfaction the fact that the sight of so many hearses gets on their nerves."—Washington Star.

The Saragossans.

It is said that the queer, composite race of people that dwell upon the waterlogged hulks of the Saragossa sea, in the mid-Atlantic, have a pretty theory about death. They believe that those to whom the messenger comes when the sun is shining brightly are transported straight away to a heaven of warm fresh water only four feet in depth, in which they may wade and disport themselves to all eternity. On the other hand, those who receive the call of death in hours of darkness must needs endure a probationary period before they can enter into the future life. The Saragossans are in addition firm believers in premonitions, omens and foreordinations.

Instincts of a Woman.

A little girl who had for some time wanted a dog was taken very ill. One day when much better she told her mother of her desire and begged her to ask her grandpa to buy her one. The mother answered that grandpa did not like dogs and probably would not be willing to buy one. Then, seeing the little invalid look sadly disappointed, she said, "Well, wait till you get well, my dear, then we will see."

"Oh, no," answered the child, whose few years had taught her some wisdom. "The more sick I am the more likely he will be to buy it for me."—Exchange.

Hoarding.

Hoarding is not only an economic mistake, but an economic crime as well. It is, in fact, a survival of the evil days of maladministration. It comes down to us from the time when nearly all governments were conquerors which considered themselves entitled to plunder their subjects. Thus hoarding is founded upon distrust of the government.—Statesman, Calcutta

Do Not Crowd the Season

The first warm days of spring bring with them a desire to get out and enjoy the exhilirating air and sunshine. Children that have been housed up all winter are brought out and you wonder where they all came from. Heavy winter clothing is thrown aside and many shed their flannels. Then a cold wave comes and people say that grip is epidemic. Colds at this season are even more dangerous than in mid-winter, as there is much more danger of pneumonia. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, however, and you will have nothing to fear. It always cures, and we have never known a cold to result in pneumonia when it is used. It is pleasant and safe to take. The children like it.

Heart Interest.

"That play," remarked the critical person, "lacks heart interest."

"It does, eh?" answered the star. "You just ought to see the way the manager is taking the box office receipts to heart."—Washington Star.

Neglected Colds Threaten Life

[From the Chicago Tribune.]

"'Don't trifle with a cold,' is good advice for prudent men and women. It may be vital in the case of a child. Proper food, good ventilation, and dry, warm clothing are the proper safeguards against colds. If they are maintained through the changeable weather of autumn, winter and spring the chances of a suprise from ordinary colds will be slight. But the ordinary light cold will become severe if neglected, and a well established ripe cold is to the germs of diphteria what honey is to the bee. The greatest menace to child life at this season of the year is the neglected cold." Whether it is a child or an adult, the cold slight or severe, the very best treatment that can be adopted is to give Chamberland's Cough Remedy. It is safe and sure. The great popularity and immense sale of this preparation has been attained by its remarkable cures of this ailment. A cold never results in pneumonia when it is given.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a Favorite

"We prefer Chamberland's Cough Remedy to any other for our children," says Mr. L. J. Woodbury of Twinging, Mich, It has also done work for us in colds and croup, and we take pleasure in recomending it."

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

A VALID OBJECTION.

Young Sheridan's Ready Wit Saved Him a Birching.

Richard Brinsley Sheridan early evinced a genius for getting something for nothing and, seeing the door of the refectory had inadvertently been left unlocked, peeped in and saw a huge basket of grapes freshly gathered from the orchard.

Stealthily closing the door and approaching the grapes, he thus addressed them: "I publish the banns of marriage between Richard Brinsley Sheridan and these grapes. Is there any one to forbid the banns?" And, having no reply to his query, he proceeded to fill his breadbasket from the other basket with great gusto. But retribution was to follow, for on the class being reassembled the master called upon Richard Brinsley Sheridan to stand forth and joined with his name the ominous name of Walker, who was the dunce of the school and selected from his weight and size to mount the culprit upon his shoulders in order that the master might get a firm surface upon which to use the birch with effect.

Sheridan being duly mounted and appropriately denuded of superfluous raiment, the master thus addressed him: "I publish the banns of marriage between Richard Brinsley Sheridan and this birch. Is there any just cause or impediment why these two parties should not be joined in holy matrimony?"

"Hold!" yelled Sheridan.

"Well?" said the master.

To which Sheridan said, "Why, sir, the parties are not agreed!"

This being not only witty, but apt, as being a valid objection in point of law, Sheridan was requested to retire and restore himself to his former habiliments amid the uncontrollable laughter of all concerned, including the head master.—Exchange.
